

Call for Nominations

2024 Clark W. Finnerud Award

Each year the Dermatology Foundation pays tribute to the specialty's leaders and role models through its honorary awards. Members of the dermatologic community are invited to nominate their peers for the following awards to recognize their career accomplishments and contributions to the specialty.

Established in the early 1970's, this annual award honors the deserving and all-too-often forgotten part-time teacher or clinician.

There are a significant number of dermatologists in the United States who are part-time teachers and part-time clinicians. They spend countless hours teaching medical students and residents, largely without compensation, as a labor of love. They are respected, and their efforts are most appreciated but seldom recognized at a national level by their dermatologic colleagues.

The Dermatology Foundation has established an award for these part-time clinicians in dermatology. The award has been named for the late Dr. Clark W. Finnerud who was such an important individual to the Foundation during its formative period. Dr. Finnerud was an example of a dedicated teacher and clinician who served the Rush Medical School for 47 years. Thus, this award honors not only part-time teachers but also Dr. Finnerud for his achievements, foresight and generosity.

Recent past awardees:

R. Jeffrey Herten, MD
Valerie D. Callender, MD
Jeffrey Sugarman, MD, PhD
Paul Schneiderman, MD
Phoebe Rich, MD

Please submit a letters of nomination and support by September 29, 2023 to:

Your letter of nomination should include any necessary background information that qualifies the nominee for the award and his/her curriculum vitae. All letters must be received by the deadline. Awards will be presented March 2024 in San Diego, CA at the margins of the AAD Annual Meeting.

For a complete recipient list please visit the past nominees link on our website, www.dermatologyfoundation.org/HAWD.